

European Festival of Latin and Greek

On 24 March 2017 take part in the largest mass reading of The Odyssey ever organised !

For its 11th year, The European Festival of Latin and Greek is launching an unprecedented challenge: a Europe-wide public reading of The Odyssey which will gather together simultaneously, in France and abroad, hundreds of people to read Homer's Odyssey.

Are you a teacher? A student? A bookseller? A librarian? A theatre-goer? Or simply convinced of the necessity to nurture the humanities? So organise a group of readers and choose a public space to enable people to hear a complete song from The Odyssey in the language of your choosing; about 20 pages, an hour-long reading and ... long live culture!

To participate, you just have to send to inscription@festival-latingrec.eu the following information:

- Name and activity of the person who organizes the group of readers (together with the name of the school or university if it is the case)
- Which book of the Odyssey you want to read
- Number of readers
- The language(s) chosen for your reading
- Venue (if possible in a public place)

More information : www.festival-latingrec.eu